DECATUR REVIEW.

DR. BLISS was expelled from his connection with the medical fraternity for his cundurango quackery.

ST. LOUIS dealers in "options" are unhappy because of the recent burst up of a "bucket shop." They would settle at 50 cents. but will probably have to take much less.

THE New York World reads John Kelly out of the party. The World had better go a little slow. There have been times when its democracy was as much "off color" as John Kelly's.

THE half-breeds of New York are anxious as to whether Conkling will be a delegate to their coming state convention. If he wishes to be a delegate he will be there, and he will be there in spirit at least.

CADET WHITTAKER, who is rusticating at Flushing, Long Island, is still drawing pay at the rate of $4 a month, and this will continue until his case is disposed of. His ears have already cost the government about twenty times as much as an entire negro used to cost before the war.

THE Springfield state Journal with that puritanical can't, so characteristic of its party, says:

"If corn continues to go up the price of whisky will advance—and that will be bad for democratic candidates this fall."

The Journal here makes a mean fling at the democracy which the facts do not carry out. There may be too many men in the democratic party who are addicted to an intemperate use of whisky, but for every democratic candidate, or prominent democrat, against whom this can be said, there can be found a "pair" from the same class of republicans. Whisky drinking is not a "party measure." It is to be regretted that so many of our public men of all parties are addicted to excess in this, but we put more faith in a public official who may be thus unfortunate in his tastes and habits, than in a cold water editor who will maliciously lie about his political opponents.

SOME of the democratic papers are discussing the propriety of a "central organ" for the party of the state. Whenever some particular paper makes itself better than its cotemporaries, and preaches a sounder, more stable democratic doctrine than they, it will be reconized as a leader of democratic thought and opinion. It will never do it by hanging around for the pap that may drip from the tables of those who aspire to leadership. It may be very desirable for a few fellows who aim to run the party to have an "organ" which will play a tune in response to their "cranking," but it is not always best for the party. Let the democracy of the state endeavor to build up their local press, and it will become a power for good If any paper, no matter where located, can show itself worthy of leadership, the fact will soon be recognized, and by none sooner than by the brethren of the democratic press of the state.

A Disastrous Fire.

On Sunday about twelve o'clock the barn on the Camron farm, on the Harristown road, west of this city. was discovered to be in flames, and in a short time was burned to the ground, with all its contents. The fire was soon communicated to the corn crib, hog house and other out buildings which were quickly destroyed. W. J. Camron and the family were at dinner when the fire was discovered, which was then in the east part of the building, the part most distant from the house. But it it was too late either to stop the progress of the flames, or to even save any of the property. Besides the buildings there were burned six head of horses, and the harness for the same, one thousand bushels of oats, four hundred bushels of wheat one hundred and twenty bushels of flax, twelve tons of hay, one calf, one hog, and all the farming implements on the place—all the personal property naturally about a barn except a wagon and a buggy. The loss will fall heavily on W. J. Camron and his sister, though a small portion of the grain belonged to a brother, and a third to N. M. Howard of Toledo, the present owner of the farm. Mr. Camron will have the heart-felt sympathy of his neighbors and friends in his loss of almost their entire possessions.

THE NEWS

BY TELEGRAPH.

The Suffering President

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 21, 9 P. M.—Reports from Washington state that the president is gaining strength He continues to take his nourishment and without urging. Pulse 100. His physicians are again hopeful.

Still Better.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Aug. 21, 11 p. m.—The latest news received here report the president as improving.

Unofficial Bulletin.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Aug. 20.—The president has taken nourishment through the mouth several times today, and in considerable quantities. In all he has swallowed about ten ounces of koumiss and four ounces of milk gruel without any indications of gastric disturbance. It has not been thought prudent up to the present time to give him any other kind of liquid food, but the juice of beefsteak is being prepared and will be tried soon. If it be retained and assimilated, beef juice will be given every day. An enemata was also administered to the patient this forenoon, consisting of three and a half ounces of beef extract with yolk of egg.

Declined with Thanks.

WASHINGTON, D. C, Aug. 21.—The following is the reply of the Secretary of War and the Postmaster General to the telegram of Dr. Hammond sent shortly after the president was shot, asking if he could be of any service: "Executive Mansion, July 4, 1881, Washington, D. C.—Dr. Hammond, Surgeon-General, retired, New York City: Your kind offer is declined with thanks. We are satisfied with the president's medical attendants and a consultation with eminent surgeons was held this morning.

[Signed] ROBERT T. LINCOLN, Secretary of War.
THOS. L. JAMES, Postmaster-General.

Fun Carried Too Far

ATLANTA, ILL., Aug. 20.—On yesterday while men were threshing the grain of O. P. Pierce, Thomas Mills playfully threw some water on Mr. Pierce, through the hose, connected with the tank, attached to the steam thresher. Mr. Pierce, in return, tossed a jug at Mr. Mills, which struck him over the right eye, fracturing the lower base of the skull Dr. Kirk was called and dressed the wound, taking out several pieces of bone. The whole affair was in fun. The wound is not thought to be dangerous.

The Sioux-Ponca Treaty Signed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The Secretary of the Interior and the Indian Commissioner to-day signed the document transferring the land from the SIOUX to the Poncas. Buffalo Ghost, Urgard and White Ghost, of the Sioux, refused to sign on the general ground that they had been deceived too often in signing papers. They would sign if their people consented.

Killed by Lightning.

PRINCETON, Ky., Aug. 20.—Lightning struck Barretteville, a negro suburb, last evening, killing an aged negro woman named Betsy Stokes and crippling a little negro boy. The woman was crossing the street at the time and was killed instantly.

Excitement on 'Change in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, August 21.—Yesterday wheat opened excited and higher. The bulls have everything their own way. The advance on wheat was 1½ and ½@¾ on corn, but a turn soon came and the prices dropped rapidly, wheat fell 2½@2¾ and corn 2½@4. The break was caused by longs trying to realize, and the tailers all follow their wae. The scenes were the wildest ever known on 'Change in St. Louis.

From the Armenian Patriarch.

WASHINGTON, August 20.—The following communication has been received from the Patriarch of the Americans in Turkey:

MR. PRESIDENT—Providence, which watches over the days of virtuous men in the service of free countries, has saved the illustrious president of the United States from the cowardly attempt against his life. As a servant of the Armenian Church, who prays daily for all chiefs of Christendom, I hasten to express to you my felicitations. As a representative of the Armenian of Turkey, I am happy to avail myself of this occasion, Mr. President, to be the channel of conveyance to you of the sentiments, of high admiration which every nation feels for the government and people of the United States—a government which realizes all the dreams of the friends of liberty and a people whose philanthropy obeys the highest precepts of religion and morality. Invoking the benedictions of Heaven upon you and upon the people whose destinies you so nobly rule, and praying the All Powerful to hold your precious life in his keeping I have the honor to be, Mr. President, your humble servant in the Lord Jesus Christ.

[Signed] ARCHBISHOP NERCES, Armenian Patriarchate.

LINCOLN LACONICS.

Pithy Paragraphs Palatably Prepared by Our Lincoln Correspondent.

Burglaries and petty thieving are quite common in the city now.

The Mutual Union telegraph company is rapidly erecting its line along the C. & A. railroad.

St. Louis horse buyers are paying from $160 to $200 for good horses and mules now—Prices are handsomely going up.

Dr. W. E. Wadams, of this city, and Gib. Cunningham, of Delevan, will shoot a pigeon match at the fair grounds next Monday. The match is for $50 dollars a side; 50 birds at 20 yards rise from a plunge trap. Considerable interest is being manifested by the friends of the respective shootists.

It is reported that one Sam G. Allen, has jumped the town to avoid arrest and prosecution, for embezzeling funds which he had collected, belonging to certain clients. He was a young attorney who played too much pool, smoked too many cigars, wore too good clothes, made too many unpaid board bills, put on too much style and appropriated too much money belonging to unsuspecting clients. He has "gone west."

The rapid rise in the price of corn is making a portion of our farmers feel jubilant, while another portion feel anything but joyful. The latter sold some time ago, the former haven't yet sold. I heard a gentleman say yesterday that he sold at 40c and thereby lost $900. He said that would buy 8,500 ten cent drinks, and at the rate of three drinks a day would last him 3,000 days, or eight years, and allow him 240 extra drinks, and he sorrowfully remarked that he had missed lots of fun on account of his haste to sell his corn.

Mr. Wallace Nall died at his father's, in this city, on Wednesday, at 3:30 p. m. Wallace, as he was known by every one, had resided in this country since 1865, to November, 1880 when he removed with his family to Marion Center, Kansas. Some two weeks ago he grew worse in Kansas City, where he was being treated by a physician, and his father sent for him He came to his aged father and mother and spent his last days, though few, with them. He leaves a wife and one child to mourn his death, besides an aged father, invalid mother and a host of friends. He died of valvular disease of the heart. In 1873—after having been admitted to the bar of this state as an attorney-at-law, he established the Logan County Journal, and ran it as a democratic organ about a year, when he sold it and entered the banking house of Wm. M. Duskin, where he remained until December, 1875, when he became editor and proprietor of the Lincoln Times, and continued to edit and publish the same as the democratic paper of this congressional district until January, 1880, at which time he sold out the paper and removed to Kansas, as above stated. During the campaign of 1880 he was active in politics, and was a candidate before the convention for the nomination to the lower house of the last general assembly. Deceased was born in Hartford, Ky., April 23, 1840, and was little past 32 years of age, when he was cut off in life. The funeral services were held at 3 p. m., Friday, and they were largely attended. While he was a resident of Kansas, yet, we all feel that he was one of us, he had so long lived with us and was so well known as a bold, outspoken, honest, upright citizen. His life was insured for the benefit of his wife in the the Connecticut Mutual, for $5000.

Lincoln, Ill., Aug. 19, 1881.

Under Bonds.

"Dr." A. W. Bunce who was arrested by Sheriff Foster for practicing medicine in Decatur without the certificate required by law, was before Justice Curtis on Saturday who held him to bail in the sum $400, for a trial at the next term of circuit court. The offence with which the doctor is charged, subjects the offender to a fine of fifty to five hundred dollars, and thirty days in jail.

NEAL DOW, the great apostle of temperance, claims that the churches are not sufficently in earnest in the temperance work. He intimates that too many of the members are found on the wrong side when the test of a popular vote is presented.

GASOLINE COOKING STOVE.

The Most Perfect Cooking Stove Offered To the

Public. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

The burner which has been lately improved, will do the same amount of work with less gasoline than any burner yet invented. The shield which surrounds the burners, protects the flame from currents of air, and conducts all the heat to the cooking vessels. There is a heater around one of the burners, connecting with a Reservoir attached to the stove, which enables you to keep hot water always on hand, while it does not interfere with the burner for other purposes. Every stove is tried before leaving the factory and is warranted to give satisfaction in every instance. They are more economical, as the cost of gasoline for the same amount of work is less than that of any other fuel.

They save time as they are ready to work in one minute, and are extinguished as quickly as a gas-flame, without waste of fuel. They save annoyance, for when once started, they will keep up a uniform heat without further attention and are entirely free from smoke or smell. All Reservoirs used on the Front Rank Stoves have iron bottoms. They will not rust through and are safer and better than any others.

At the Northern Ohio Fair in 1879, a committee of three gentlemen was appointed to examine the Hull, Leader, Peerless and Front Rank, Gasoline stoves and decide which was the best. After a thorough test they unanimously decided in favor of the Front Rank by awarding it the first premium

St. Louis Republican.

We want somebody to figure up what proportion of the Republican party of Virginia is in favor of the honest payment of honest debts. A majority of the delegates elected to the Republican convention last week hastened to throw themselves into the embrace of the Readjusters, while of the remainder not fewer than thirty-two out of eighty-eight voted against the anti-repudiation resolutions. Taking the two conventions together, there were just 187 votes for repudiation to 56 against.

Citizen Hartmann.

Post-Dispatch.

Our patriotic and reformatory friend, Leo Hartmann, professional Nihilist and blower-up of imperial trains, is back in New York making arrangements to become a permanent American citizen. While we have not the slightest objection to receiving Mr. H. into the fold of the Republic, we really think that the true field for his talents is Russia. The great work of reform over there has but been fairly inaugurated, and men like Hartmann are as essential now as was Camille Desmoulins to the populace of Paris when the barricades were built in 1892. It is possible that he has made himself too conspicuous to be of service now, for this is the period when tyranny in Russia must be met by conspiracy, and a conspirator who is notorious is of no earthly account. There is no doubt about Hartmann's connection with the Moscow mine 1879. He has confessed it, and if he could be transferred to Russian soil he would be promptly treated to a stout rope and a short shrift. He asserts, upon the authority of the Governor of Moscow, that nobody was killed by his attempt upon the Czar, but his life is forfeited all the same. An attempt upon the extistence of the Czar is punishable by death, and a verbal insult to any member of the royal family is a capital offense. It may quiet some of the idiots connected with American newspapers, however, to know that Hartmann is not the bloody murderer that they have supposed him to be. He is simply a political offender. There is no extradition treaty with Russia, and he cannot be delivered over to that Government on request. If the officious knaves at Washington, who are in love with the Russian system of government, attempt to turn him over to the Siberian bloodhounds, there ought to be enough friends of liberty in this land to resist vi et armis. This great Republic, which has undertaken to teach the glorious doctrine of liberty and human equality, has witnessed with folded arms the massacre of thousands of patriots in Cuba, struggling against a despotism more galling than actual slavery, and with this shame still resting upon us we certainly ought to hesitate before we deny refuge to men who are inspired with the magnificent idea that "resistance to tyranny is obedience to God." The Czar of Russia is a despot and a despot is per se an outlaw. He rules by no right save that which he claims to have from heaven. His right is simple might. He derives no power from the consent of the governed, and when he takes a life—as he does every day in support of his bloody throne—he is simply a vile murderer. To plot against the life of such a creature is not, in our estimation, the worst thing that a gentleman can engage in. Mr. O'Donovan Rossa is permitted to collect in this country a "Skirmishing Fund" to be employed in carrying on a war of harassment against Great Britain, and up to this time no question of international comity has been raised. The Nihilists of Russia stand in far greater need of funds to carry on their war for enfranchisement and liberty and it is our sincere hope that they may be well supplied. If Mr. Hartmann can establish his genuineness he can draw on us for a reasonable sum.

Home and Its Queen.

[Scribner's Monthly.]

There is probably not an unperverted man or woman living who does not feel that the sweetest consolation and the best rewards of life are found in the loves and delights at home. There are very few who do not feel themselves indebted to the influences that clustered around [illegible] cradles for whatever good there [illegible] in their character and conduct. [illegible]ed upon Christian marriage is [illegible]ently an institution of God, that a man must become profane before he can deny it. Wherever it is pure and true to the Christian idea, there lives an institution constructed of all the nobler instincts of society.

Of this realm woman is queen. It takes the cue and hue from her. If she is in the best sense womanly—if she is true and tender, loving and heroic, patient and self-devoted—she consciously and unconsciously organizes and puts in operation a set of influences that does more to mold the destiny of the nation than any man uncrowned by power of eloquence can possibly effect.

The men of the nation are what mothers make them, as a rule; and the voice that these men speak in the expression of power is the voice of the women who bore and bred them. There is no substitute for this. There is no other possible way in which the women of the nation can organize their influence and power that it will tell so beneficially upon society and the state.

How Austrian Ladies Learn to Cook.

[Hotel Mail.]

The Austrian lady of station who does not know how to cook, one may almost say does not exist. Every detail of the cuisine she is acquainted with. A story is told by Austrian ladies of another, who, having neglected her education, allowed, at a great dinner party she gave, two dishes of the same color to be served in succession, a fault for which she was hardly to be forgiven. The princesses of the royal household attend a course of lectures from a "chef" entirely upon the order of serving.

Young ladies do not learn the art of cooking at cooking clubs, or from public lessons, as here in America, and they rarely learn in their own kitchens. It is the custom to go to some great house, the house of a princess or at a very rich banker's, where there are famous "chefs," from whom they learn. When a "chef" engages to cook for a great house, he stipulates that he is to have the privilege of teaching as many young ladies as he chooses. These young ladies need not even know the mistress of the house, and they make their engagements with the cook only.

For a course of lessons lasting through the winter each pupil pays the cook about 30 gulden, about $15. This includes instructions in every particular. If a banquet is to be given, a grand breakfast or elaborate supper, the young ladies are notified, and are there to see the dishes decorated and to learn the order of serving. They watch every process. Were you to descend to the kitchen at such a time you would no doubt find these girls suffused with blushes, for these lessons always foretell marriage, and are the last and finishing touches of a maiden's education. But it would be a breach of etiquette for any member of the household to trespass in that department, which belongs to the cook and his noble young pupils. Since young ladies must be in the dining-room themselves on such occasions in their own households, it follows that these processes they cannot watch at home, never mind on how grand a scale things are. And so in Austria all noble young ladies learn these things in another kitchen than their own.

Only One.

One squalling child will spoil an entire evening.

One new bonnet will make a woman happy.

One little flirt can make twenty-nine girls uncomfortable.

One silly remark will neutralize a good speech.

One aching tooth will reduce a human being to utter misery.

One shower of rain will ruin a new hat.

One fit of indigestion causes a man to wish he were an ostrich.

One wife has been known to set a man wondering why he was born.

The leading Scientists of to-day agree that most diseases are caused by disordered Kidneys or Liver. If, therefore, the Kidneys and Liver are kept in proper order, perfect health will be the result. This truth has only been known a short time, and for years people suffered great agony without being able to find relief. The discovery of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, marks a new era in the treatment of these troubles. Made from a simple tropical leaf of rare value, it contains just the elements necessary to nourish and invigorate both of these great organs, and safely restore and keep them in [illegible]. It is a positive remedy for all the diseases that cause pains in the lower part of the body—for torpid liver—Headaches—Jaundice—Dizziness—Gravel—Fever—Ague—Malaria fevers and all difficulties of the kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs.

It is an excellent and safe remedy for females during Pregnancy. It will control Menstruation and is invaluable for Leucorrhœa or falling of the Womb.

As a Blood Purifier it is unequaled, for it cures the organs that makes the blood.

This remedy, which has done such wonders, is put up in the LARGEST SIZED BOTTLE of any medicine upon the market, and is sold by Druggists and all dealers at $1 00 per bottle. For Diabetes, enquire for WARNER'S SAFE DIABETES CURE. It is a Positive Remedy.

COURAGE, GENIUS, LOVE.

As the tree must brave the storm
Ere it proves its stalwart form,
As the knife must wound the vine
Ere it brings us grape or wine,
So the press must crush the bloom
Ere it yields its sweet perfume.

Never hero yet was brave
Till he met the field or wave;
Never genius sweetly sung
Till its burdened heart was wrung;
Never lover truly wooed
Till in agony he sued.

Courage cannot prove its power,
Resting in a shady bower.
It must meet the battle's strife,
Daring dangers where they're rife,
And must bravely conquer death
Ere it wins the hero's wreath.

Genius must endure its fate,
Struggle with the world and wait,
Robbed of what its works have earned,
Starved while living—dying spurned,
Crowned when dead—how sad the doom!
Laurels cannot warm the tomb.

Love must suffer, grieve and weep,
Strive and bleed, yet never sleep,
Bear its pangs, so keen, so hard,
Give its all without reward;
Bless a cheerless world, then die,
Seeking still a love on high.

Preserving Wood.

The improved French method of preserving wood by the application of lime is said to work well. The plan is to place the planks in a pile in the tank and to put over all a layer of quick-lime, which is gradually slacked with water. Timber for mines requires about a week to be thoroughly impregnated, and other wood more or less time, according to its thickness. The material acquires remarkable consistence and hardness, it is stated, on being subjected to this simple process, and the assertion is made that it will never rot. Beechwood prepared in this way for hammers and other tools for ironwork is found to acquire the hardness of oak, without parting with any of its well-known elasticity or toughness, and it also lasts longer.

"Oukla's" Aphorisms.

Fiction is a greyhound, and Truth is a snail.

It isn't what you are, but what you appear to be.

Nothing succeeds in the end like invulnerability.

The chief offense of the poet, as of the philosopher, is that the world as it is, fails to satisfy them.

To be blind with a supreme vanity, is like being shut in a windowless room, lined with looking glasses.

Taken roughly it may be safely predicted that it will always be the highest nature which will submit. Often it is the jade that rules the hero; the fool that has his feet kissed by the genius.

Men are always inclined to be pityful to the woes of a woman when they are not woes which they themselves have caused. They will stone away without mercy a woman whom they themselves have wounded, but for the victim of another man they are quick to be moved to tenderness and indignation.

Mature Reflection.

[Brooklyn Eagle]

"My darling, have you thought of the happy summer that our lives will be when we are joined for better or worse?"

"Oh! yes, John, I've thought of it."

"And have you thought of the bright home that we will build on the foundation of our affection, and which will be painted with the dying flashes of the sun and furnished with the silver and gold that makes the night of the heavens beautiful?"

"Oh! yes, John, I've thought of it."

"Have you thought of the years that will come to us across the sea of time, white capped but blue with promises of years to come?"

"Sure's you're born, John, I've thought of it."

"And have you thought—? have you—? have—?"

"Oh! yes, John, more than all the rest, and John, let us name it after you."

It is impossible to make people understand their ignorance, for it requires knowledge to perceive it; and therefore he that can perceive it hath it not

A PLOT DISCOVERED.

I am a saddler by trade' but I am of a sentimental and contemplative turn of mind and often saunter by myself into St James Park, London, and along the Bird Cage Walk. One evening lately, rapt in my meditations, I remained till it was dark, and the park was nearly empty. I had taken my station under a large tree, near which was a bench, on which two rather well-dressed men were seated and apparently in earnest conversation. Coming out of my reverie, I began to speculate on the causes which were most likely to have drawn my new neighbors to this quiet spot. "Are they," thought I "members of Parliament come here to study what they are to say on some important question? Are they lovers, seeking retirement to descant to each other on the charms of their intendeds? Are they husbands, afraid to face their wives? Are they"—but all my conjectures were put to flight by the first sentence which reached my ear.

"Well, Tom," said one, "your plot is well laid; but I think you will have some difficulty in disposing of Berkeley."

"Oh, not at all," replied Tom. "I propose sending him to one of the West Indian Islands, and there are too many ways there of stopping a man's breath for me to be at any loss."

"Is his death absolutely necessary?" asked the other.

"Undoubtedly," answered Tom "for you know the duke has sworn that Julia shall never marry Villiers so long as Berkeley is alive."

"Heavens and earth," thought I, "what atrocious villains are here! What duke are they speaking of? What Berkeley do they allude to?" I had no time for further reflection.

"True, true," said the other, "he must certainly be put out of the way; but I think your sending him to the West Indies is a clumsy mode of getting rid of him. Could you not kill him in a duel?"

"Nothing could be more easy, my dear Bob," replied Tom; "but as I dismissed Spencer to the other world, with a bullet for his passport, I would rather try another mode. I think I shall have him murdered by a slave driver."

"I can not consent to that," answered Bob; "I don't like the expedient."

"Like it or not," said Tom, angrily, "I am not aware that it is necessary to ask your consent in the matter."

"Did we not agree to do the thing between us, and to divide the cash?" asked his companion. "You are inexperienced in these matters, but I have put a good many such jobs through my hands already."

Imagine the dismay with which I listened to this horrible dialogue. My head swam, my blood ran cold, I crept close to the tree, even afraid to draw my breath.

"Well, well," said Tom "don't let us fall out about it; Berkeley shall die some way or other. I am glad you think well of the plot. Our employer will surely be satisfied seeing there are three dukes, seven marquises and nineteen earls engaged in it. The deuce is in it if that won't content him!"

"Thunder and lightning!" said I to myself, "it is plain that some awful conspiracy is hatching. Is the town to be burnt? Is the House of Commons to be blown up?"

"When Berkeley is done for," continued Bob, "Villiers will marry Julia. They will be presented at court, and then comes the grand catastrophe. We then assassinate William."

My brain whirled; I could scarcely credit my senses; and it was only after pinching my arm that I could believe I was awake. "Is it possible," thought I, "that there ruffians could coolly plot the death of our gracious sovereign under the very nose of the palace? Desperadoes that they are! But the King shall live, and Berkeley shall not be murdered by a slave-driver, if I can help it!"

They had by this time left the bench and were walking toward town. Fired with indignation I hastened after them, guided by the sound of their footsteps. As there was no creature near to assist me in securing them, I resolved not to attempt it till help was at hand. Step by step I followed them till they reached Charing-cross, when suddenly springing forward I seized Bob by the collar, and called out "Help! help! they are murderers!"

A crowd immediately gathered around, and Tom instead of rushing away stood stock still. "I charge you all, in the King's name," said I "to secure these two ruffians!" Bob, who had remained motionless, now knocked me down. The police interfered however and set me on my legs. I was still bold as I could be. "I charge these two men," said I, "Tom and Bob, other names unknown, with conspiring the death of sundry individuals, and I command you," I continued, turning to the policeman, "to carry them before a magistrate, where I shall substantiate the charge."

At this Bob and Tom affected the most perfect amazement, and treated the accusation with the greatest scorn. The mob, however, took part with me, the uproar increased, and the policeman carried us all before Sir Richard Birnie.

The appearance of Bob and Tom at Bow street seemed to occasion some surprise, and Sir Richard, who appeared to know them, looked confounded on hearing the report of the policeman.

"Gentleman," said he," "this is a most extraordinary affair. I scarcely expected to see you before me on such an occasion."

"You could not expect it less than we did," answered Bob. "It is not to be borne that gentlemen, are to be pelted by a mob, and dragged here like felons, on the bare assertion of a scurvy, half drunk tailor."

"I am not a tailor, Master Bob," I replied; "I am an honest maker of saddles."

"I wish you had learned to put them on the right horse, "answered Bob, as bold as brass. "Sir Richard, I presume we may retire?"

"If you let them go, it will be at your own peril," said I.

"Gentlemen," said Sir Richard, "have a moment's patience and we shall soon settle this business. You fellow, state your charge."

"By your leave, Sir Richard, I will first say a few words which will make their conscience fly in their faces. Hark ye, Master Bob and Master Tom, other names unknown, look at me."

"Well!" answered Bob, "we do look at you and see nothing but a half starved wretch in a suit of clothes not worth eighteen pence."

"If I took in hand certain jobs, and shared the cash like some people," replied I, staring him full in the face, "I might have a better coat on my back. You take me, Master Bob—"

"I take you for an insolent scoundrel!" said Bob, in a rage.

"No more of this," said Sir Richard "but state distinctly your charge."

"I charge them with conspiring the death of a gentleman of the name Berkeley, and of his gracious Majesty, William the Fourth."

At this Bob and Tom stared at each other, and Sir Richard looked confounded.

"Yes," I continued, turning to the culprits, "I overheard your murderous schemes, and you monster of iniquity! you swore to assassinate the King! And what harm has Berkeley done you that he should be murdered by a slave-driver? You boasted that your plot was well laid; but confess, ruffians, who are the three dukes the seven marquisses and the nineteen earls who are engaged in it?"

At this the hardened wretches burst into such a shout of laughter as made the roof ring. Peal after peal, though I plainly saw that this was done to gain time to concoct some story to palm upon Sir Richard. At length Master Bob owned that he and his companion had certainly been in St. James' Park that night, and that they had sat for sometime under a tree; but that the conversation I had overheard related entirely to the personages in a novel which he and his companion were writing jointly, and that this was the plot they alluded to. Master Tom, taking this hint, chimed in with the story; and they so bamboozled Sir Richard that the good simple man dismissed the charge, adding a few remarks so little complimentary to me that I must stand excused for not setting them down.

"Sir Richard," said I, solemnly, "you are imposed upon; these rogues are too much for you; but since you are pleased to let loose Master Bob and Master Tom, other names unknown, I wash my hands."

"When your hand is in, you had better wash your face," remarked Master Bob, and this was the last I saw of Master Bob, and Master Tom, other names unknown

"Roughing It."

A new feature, or rather experiment in the training of lads, has become of late popular in some of our Middle States.

It is to send the young man, fresh from college, perhaps, and elated with scholastic or athletic honors, to herd sheep or cattle for a year on a Western ranch.

At first thought, this treatment seems rough, almost brutal. But it usually proves wholesome, as a cold douche to an enervated body.

The lad, used to the narrow routine of school-life, is apt to have exaggerated ideas of his own importance, and to be mentally and morally near-sighted.

He is brought at once face to face with nature in her wildest, most untamed aspects, and with illiterate, but blunt, candid, and not unkindly men, who will measure respect or despise him according to no social standard of rank, wealth, or even scholarship; but for the absolute strength of manhood that is in him. Homer or Legendre, titled grandfathers or a full pocket, will count for nothing with such natures if the young man be a sneak or a coward.

The life is rough, but not necessarily immoral. Even in its worst phases, the temptations which meet a young man are not as alluring as those which are offered to him at every turn in a great city. If his moral strength has been guarded and trained as it should have been during his nonage, he is not likely to fall a victim to the open, unsavory evils of the whiskey bottle or the greasy pack of cards in a rancher's hut.

Besides, the only way to justly weigh and estimate civilization is for a season to get outside of it. A lad subjected to this treatment for a year, tried daily only by the courage, common-sense, shrewdness, and downright force that is in him, comes back with "much of the nonsense taken out of him," and with a broad outlook over the world, and a firm comprehension of reality and of conventional falsities, which years of town life would not give him.

Added to all this is the thorough strengthening of his physical forces in the pure air and hard out-door work. Many a petted, weakly stripling might be saved from death, or an inefficient, sickly life, by a year of exile on the prairies.

The Mighty Mississippi.

That the Mississippi may deservedly be called the "Father of Waters" the following data will show:

Quantity of water discharged by that river annually, 14,883,360,636,880 cubic feet; quantity of sediment discharged annually, 28,183,088,892 cubic feet. area of the delta of the river, according to Lyell's estimate, 13,000 square miles, and depth of the same, as calculated by Professor Riddell, 1,056 feet.

The delta, consequently, as appears from these figures, contains 400,378,429,440,000 cubic feet, or 2,720 cubic miles; and it would require for the formation, therefore, one of cubic mile of delta five years and eighty-one days—for the formation of one square mile, of the depth of 1,056 feet, one year sixteen and one fifth days.

Medical.

D. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.

Endorsed and recommended by the medical profession; for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, Nervous Prostration, and Convalescence from Fevers, &c.

GENTLEMEN: I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and slacking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the Tonic. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the strength nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the Tonic has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. C. F. WATSON, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.

The Iron Tonic is a preparation of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark, and Phosphates, associated with the Vegetable Aromatics. It carries every purpose where a Tonic is necessary.

WONDERFUL CURE

READ PROOF OF WONDERFUL CURES.

Fremont, Ohio, Jan. 25, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents.—I think it my duty to render you my thanks for benefits and profits which I have derived from your invaluable and far famed Spavin Cure. My cousin and I had a valuable stallion worth $4000 which had a very bad spavin, and was pronounced by four eminent Veterinary Surgeons beyond any cure, and that the horse was done for ever. As a last resort I advised my cousin to try a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure. It had a magical effect, the third bottle cured it, and the horse is as well as ever. Dr. Dick, of Edinburg, the eminent veterinary surgeon, was an uncle of mine, and I take great interest in assisting his profession.

Yours truly,
James A. Wilson,
Civil Engineer.

Winthrop, Iowa, Nov. 23, '80

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents—Enclosed please find 25 cents for your treatise on the horse and his diseases. I have been using Kendall's Spavin Cure on one of my horses for bone spavin. One bottle entirely cured the lameness and removed most all of the bunch Yours respectfully,
Leroy M. Grayham.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

ON HUMAN FLESH.

West Enosburgh, Vt., Feb. 15th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Several months ago I injured my knee joint which caused an enlargement to grow the size of a large walnut and caused me very severe pain all the time for four or five weeks, when I began to use Kendall's Spavin Cure with the most satisfactory results. It has completely removed the enlargement and stopped the lameness and pain. I have long known it to be excellent for horses but now I know it to be the best liniment for human flesh that I am acquainted with.

Yours truly,
T. P. Lawrence.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

Wilton, Minn., January 11, '81

B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents—Having got a horse book of you by mail a year ago, the contents of which persuaded me to try Kendall's Spavin Cure on the hind leg of one of my horses which was badly blemished, and could not be reduced by any other remedy. I got two bottles of Kendall's Spavin Cure of Preston & Lindrith, druggists of Wascca, which completely cured my horse. About five years ago I had a three year old colt sweenied very bad. I used your remedy as given in your book without rowelling, and I must say to your credit, that the colt is entirely cured, which is a surprise not only to myself, but also to my neighbors. You sent me the book for the trifling sum of twenty-five cents, and if I could not get another like it, I would not take twenty-five dollars for it.

Yours truly,
Geo. Mathews.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

Is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavens, splints, curbs, callous sprains, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used acting mildly and yet certain in its effects. Send address for Illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Barnum's a coming, oh, ho, oh, ho!

Listen for the wedding bells this week.

Attend the last M. E. festival of the season.

Keep your eye on Wednesday night.

Only nine days more of August this year.

Everybody bragged on the weather yesterday.

Been interviewing again, eh? That "oscillating star" tells it on ye.

Don't forget the Acme opera com pany on Wednesday evening of this week.

A change in the Midland time card went into effect yesterday at noon.

The "New Deming" signs put up on Saturday are very neat, and in fine taste.

Barnum's show bills in all their glory will appear on the bill boards of the city this week.

The brick ware house at the corner of North Main and Eldorado streets is receiving its roof.

The sale of seats for the Acme opera company will open at Curtis & Co's., jewelry store this morning.

The third ward ditch still wafts its perfumes abroad, much to the discomfort of the olfactories along its borders.

Brick are being hauled upon the ground for the erection of the Swearingen block on the corner of Edward and Morgan streets.

The operation of setting the plate glass in the New Deming was commenced on Saturday, and will be finished up to day.

Farmers will soon want to be plowing for their fall wheat but that work cannot be done while the ground is as dry as it is now.

Let everybody, in both town and country, remember how much dam ages a small fire might do during this extreme dry weather, and exercise the greatest of caution.

Frederick Forstmeyer died possessed of a house and lot on West Wood street. It was bequeathed to him by an old Austrian who was kindly cared for by the family in his last illness.

Our neighbors, take Decatur for a pattern and cut their public, garments accordingly. Bement wants to rid herself of the tramps and has decided to purchase a supply of balls and chains.

The fine brick house in process of construction by George D. Haworth, at the corner of Eldorado and Jackson streets, is now receiving its roof. This will be an imposing structure when done.

The prospect for that racy trial to-morrow isn't very good, since both of the defendants are reported sick. Anna has one and Amanda two physicians looking after their physical interests.

The operation of putting the sewer in the run down past the residence of D. L. Bunn esq., is progressing, though rather slowly. It will probably be completed before the ground freezes.

A large force of workmen were busily engaged yesterday laying new crossings at the Central depot. New ties and new rails take the place of the old ones. It didn't look much like Sunday down there.

Electric bells have commenced to ring at the St. Nicholas hotel. The wires connecting the various rooms with the handsome annunciator which has been placed in the office, are being put in position.

"A cheerful piece of reading for housekeepers" is promised in Mrs. Fannie Roper Feudge's "How I Kept House by Proxy,"—a sketch of a wonderful Chinese cook,—to be printed in Scribner for September.

An extraordinary capture of a large shark by a gigantic clam is to be narrated by Mr. C. F. Holder, in the forthcoming September number of St. Nicholas. Mr. James C. Beard is to furnish a striking illustration of this curious incident.

Yesterday was W. W. Swearingen's 34th birth day. A number of his friends arranged a surpise for him at the residence of Harry Dillehunt. An hour was spent in social chat and the meeting was closed by singing the doxology.

The new time card of the Midland railway is published this morning. The changes are slight, except the addition of a new passenger train which is placed on the road between Decatur and Indianapolis, to leave hare at 7 a. m.

The Piatt county fair last week is reported a success. The show of fine stock was especially good, and the numerous races aided in drawing a large attendance. A snug little surplus was cleared for the treasury of the association.

The firemen continue to prac tice every Sunday morning for the Quincy tournament. Since they commenced practicing out at the fair grounds they have made better running time than ever before, even beating the time made by the Denver company at Council Bluffs.

The extensive car repair shops of the Wabash are now about completed. Workmen are now grading for a large blacksmith shop immediately north of the car shop. The grade being thrown up is 80x280 feet. Tracks will be run from one shop to the other so that trucks and cars can be run to just the point they are wanted.

The Merchant street photographer, E. W. Shively, has a new picture which he considers superior to any photograph or oil painting ever made. It is not yet on exhibition at the gallery, but is still at his residence on the corner of Water and North streets, in the arms of its mother. It is a girl, and will be one day old at 5 o'clock, This morning.

A couple of fellows who got into a fight near the railroad track north of the depot were before Justice Albert Saturday morning. The usual three dollars and costs were assessed and as they had no money they went down to the cooler, and unless they pay out this morning, they will be treated to the ball and chain. They pretented that they could not talk English, but they had a wonderful faculty of understanding what was said to them.

Our latest news from Mr. Shoemaker last night was to the effect that he was sinking very fast. He has become unconscious, and almost speechless. His daughter, Mrs. Mary Post, of the southern part of the state, arrived at her father's bedside, two or three days ago, and last evening a dispatch was sent to his son, W. H. Shoemaker, an engineer on the Hannibal & St. Joe railroad, notifying him to come at once

Gov. Cullom has issued an order explaining why the J. N. G. will not hold a general encampmrnt this year, attributing it to lack of funds Upon requst of brigade commanders at such localities as the citizens desire to furnish free trasportation and subsistence. There has been no provision for the payment for the services of the officers and men, but camp and garrison equipage will be furnished by the state. Gen. Reece commander of the Second Brigade, of which the Decatur companies form a part, will probably order his brigade into camp at Bloomington during the week of the Sol diers reunion in that city to be held Sept. 6th and 7th. The Decatur boys may as well begin preparations for a week of soldiering.

Harry Lintner came home on Saturday to spend Sunday. He captured seven premiums at the Monticello fair, five of them first premiums and two of them seconds. His bays took 1st premium as gent's driving team; "Long Nine" look 1st premium as gent's single driver; "Carmona" took 1st premium as filly for all work —one year old, also 1st premium in roadster ring; "Sternlet" took 2d premium in roadster ring; "Mable Pearl" took 1st premium as best roadster mare—aged ring; the fine three-year-old stallion, "Sanford" took 2d premium in roadster stallion ring, being beaten out of the 1st by an eight-year-old. Harry's horses have gone to Clinton, whither he fol lows this morning. We trust he may have equally as good luck at the DeWitt county fair this week.

IN ONE GRAVE.

Last Sad Rites Over the Mortal Remains of M. Forstmeyer and His Unfortunate Son.

As heretofore stated in these col umns ex-Sheriff Forstmeyer breathed his last at a few minutes past 12 o'clock last Thursday. The circumstance of the almost simultaneous death of his eldest son, Fred, who has been confined in the Jacksonville insane asylum for more than a year past, has also been given. The latter having escaped from the asylum on Wednesday, was doubtless endeavoring to find his way back home, when he was run over by the C. & A. railway train that night near Murrayville, Morgan county, about ten miles south of Jacksonville. His body was received here on Friday.

Yesterday the funeral services were observed and both bodies buried together. The sight of two hearse standing before one residence was the touching scene witnessed by a vast crowd of people who collected about the family home, on South Church street, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Here the different orders to which Mr. Forstmeyer belonged collected, there being a large turn out of Odd Fellows, Firemen, and Turners Verein, together with the Mayor and members of the city council and a large number of citizens. These followed the bodies to the county court house, which was dense ly packed with people before half of those collected had gained admitance. There were probably twelve hundred people inside the building. Rev. D. P. Bunn, of the Universalist church, preached the funeral sermon. After opening the services he first read an account of Mr. Forstmeyre's death, as published in one of the city papers, following which he chose a text, two verses in the latter part of the 15th chapter of 1st Corinthians, and preached a rather lengthy funeral sermon, eulogizing the life and character of deceased and expressing many words of good cheer to the bereaved widow and children. Martin Forstmeyer, who had for more than a quarter of a century been identified with the interests of Decatur and Macon county, was, in some respects, a rough man, but he had as warm and kind a heart as ever throbbed within a human bosom. His charity was true charity: he gave without any expectancy of reward.

At the close of the funeral sermon, the two coffins were opened, and all present who desired to do so were permitted to take a farewell look upon the two faces pale in death. The crowd passed around the room, between the two coffins, and out at the door. The funeral cortege was then formed and headed by the brass band marched to Greedwood cemetery. It was pronounced by many the largest funeral procession ever witnessed in Decatur. At the cemetery a vast throng of people had already collected, and when the long train of Odd Fellows, Firemen, Turners, city officials and citizens were added there were probably three or four thousand people in the cemetery. At the grave, alongside three other children of Mr. Forstmeyer, who had previously been called away, the body of Fred was first deposited, the following young men acting as pall bearers: John Mattes, Nicholas Scherer, Charley Young, Wm. Kossick, Henry Aman and Henry Kossick. Then the body of the father was brought to the same grave, the pall bearers being Jacob Spangler, John Ullrich, T. B. Albert, Wm. Towling, E. G. Tucker and Geo. Hunsley. The band played slowly and mournfully while each of the corpse was borne to the grave. Before the body of Mr. Forstmeyer was lowered into its final resting place the Odd Fellows performed their beautiful and touching ceremonies over it the same being conducted by A. R. ArbuckleN. G., and B. S. Woodruff, R. S. At the conclusion of these, a benediction was pronounced by Rev. Bunn, and the last observances of the living over the dead bodies of the father and son were finished. Just such scenes as that witnessed on this occasion have their part in the great lessons of life. Many an eye was moistened, many a heart was caused to beat in sympathetic unison with those who are left to mourn and many a thoughtless one was thus reminded of the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death. Martin Forstmeyer and his son Fred have gone the way of all the earth.

Mr. Fred Peabody, Wabash conductor on the Chicago and St. Louis division, has been taking a few day's vacation with his many friends in this city. Fred is a nice, clever fellow and his Decatur friends are always glad to have him among them.

Ed. C. Gay returned Saturday evening after an absence of nearly a week, during which time he has traveled over a good deal of territory in the state. He thinks the damage to the growing crops in Illinois has been greatly exaggerated.

Mr. Boyd Braden was walking about town on Saturday but he was obliged to go slow, and lean heavily upon his cane. It will be sometime yet before Mr. B. will be fully restored. The REVIEW expresses the wish that he may realize steady improvement. He has suffered much from sciatic rheumatism.

Mr. R. P. Cox, the Cincinnati commercial traveler, returned last night after a three or four weeks tour through southern Missouri and Arkansas. Over two months of dry hot weather accompanied by the simoon-like winds that have prevailed in that section, have played sad havoc with the cotton crop, and Mr. Cox thinks that at best there cannot be more than two-thirds of a crop.

W. M. Boyd, his wife and two daughters and Miss Annie Cham bers returned home on Saturday evening from a pleasant visit to the mountains of Virginia. They spent the past week on the homeward trip, stopping at Washington, White Sulphur Springs, and other points of interest. Mr. Boyd reports that certain portions of the "Old Dominion" are suffering for want of rain, but as a rule, business prospects are good. He thinks Virginia is destined to make rapid progress in the next ten years, particularly if the debt paying element retain control of public affairs.
